OFFERED BY MS. MOORE OF WISCONSIN

In section 235(a), add at the end the following:

“The Secretary of State shall review the initial resettlement assistance that the Department of State provides to Iraqi refugees brought to the United States to determine whether changes are needed to ensure that such refugees are able to fully receive adequate health, employment, language, and other assistance to become productive residents of the areas where they are resettled. Such review should identify barriers that newly resettled Iraqi refugees in the United States report facing and Department plans to address such barriers. Such review should also include a determination whether Iraqi refugees resettled in the United States should be allowed additional time to receive initial refugee resettlement assistance provided by the Department given identified barriers and other ongoing needs to their successful resettlement. The Secretary should also report on the Department’s efforts to regularly review the assistance being provided to resettled Iraqi refugees to ensure that it is adequate.”
